Reading and Responding to “Work Family Conflict”

Get into groups of three, and come up with three things the author did well, and three questions you have about the paper. Also, be ready, with the whole class to talk about the four questions below:

1. What seemed to be the author’s take on her subject? How does she indicate this take to you?
2. How does the author use subheadings to help you, her reader, work through her piece.
3. What did you notice about the tone? How do you think that this tone might be, or might not be indicative, of papers written in the social sciences?
4. What can you take from what this author did to help you with your writing?
