Peer Review Instructions

Step One: Read your paper aloud to your peers. Stop if you hear something odd, and mark your place in your text.

Step Two: Listen to your peers as they tell you the following:
- What they thought was the “center of gravity” of your piece—in their own words. (Write down what they say.)
- What they thought was the “best moment” in the piece—the thing that will stick with them. (Write down what they say.)
- Any place, idea, image, or other element of your text that they “wanted to hear more about.”

Step Three: After everyone is done with steps one and two, make sure that you ask additional questions and get the clarity you want.
